

MISS ROOSEVELT'S Visit to World's Fair Closes With Trip to Pike—School Children to Be Admitted Free to Grounds When Liberty Bell Arrives—Big Reception Planned for Travelers' Protective Association.

ITALY'S PAVILION
OPENS TO-MORROW

Count Macchi di Cellere, Minister to This Country, Arrives.

TWO CONSULS GENERAL HERE.

Beautiful Structure at the World's Fair to Be Formally Dedicated With Appropriate Ceremonies.

Italy's national pavilion at the World's Fair will be formally opened to-morrow afternoon by a reception lasting from 4 to 6 o'clock. The Italian Minister to the United States, Count Macchi di Cellere, arrived in St. Louis yesterday morning to attend the ceremonies of opening.

Count Macchi was accompanied by the Italian Consul General to New York, Doctor Gustav Tosti. It was his intention to call yesterday to pay their respects to President Francis, but the weather prevented them.

Commissioner General Branch will give a dinner to-night to the Minister at the Washington Hotel, at which twenty World's Fair officials and foreign Commissioners will be guests. Among the guests will be the Italian Consul General at Chicago, Count Ladislav Rozwadowski.

Count Macchi is a distinguished member of Italian nobility and a nephew of Cardinal Macchi, the dean of the Sacred College of Cardinals, who announced the election of the present Pope to the pontificate.

ANCIENT VILLA.

The pavilion is built in the style of the ancient villas of the Emperors of the Caesarian age, with gardens and fountains. The front colonnade ends in two stout lateral "propylae" crowned by two "Victories" of gilded bronze, by Ballelli of Milan, one of which brings to St. Louis the Italian laurel and the other the olive branch as a token of peace and welfare.

The bas-reliefs which decorate the bases of the two pylons are by Fontana of Rome, and are imitations of the ancient style. On one of them the Italian genius of Marconi is represented, who, by wireless telegraphy, corresponds with young and powerful America, portrayed on the other pillar.

After ascending the first stairs, about ninety feet wide, and passing through all the first colonnade of Ionic style, this aisle is enriched with marble and porcelain works, the visitor comes to the garden where the ancient Romans used to grow their laurel, an image of glory.

Only from the rear of the pavilion, the building is seen, erected on a strong base more than 15 feet high with another flight of stairs more than 45 feet wide. The front is formed by a central body in the Corinthian style, flanked by two lower parts, ornamented with marble and bronze works. The Caryatids, or female figures supporting the roof, are copies of the ancient Caryatids of Greek origin now in the castle of Albano, near Rome.

The gilded wording "Italia" on the central front is temporary and will be changed by an inscription, that will be the kind greetings of the country of Columbus to the young and powerful American nation.

Besides the sculpture and bronze vases, this front is embellished by two enormous poles upon bronze bases. These poles, so often used by the Romans as a symbol of festivity and triumph, will carry the American and Italian flags.

SCIENCE AND ART.

The bas-reliefs in imitation of ancient marble, which surround the building, represent the last searches for the North Pole, the various discoveries of science, navigation and arts.

Beyond the great central stairs is found the vestibule. After crossing the central door is the principal hall, intended for receptions and concerts, which is flanked by two other halls. The annexes are in the basement. The decorative work in this hall, with its vaults gilded to resemble mosaic, is temporary, and will be improved upon afterwards with paintings and sculptures.

In this hall stands a faithful copy of the famous Etruscan vase called "Of Francois," belonging to the gallery of Florence, and a good copy of the Roman group of wrestlers. Also, in the same hall, in the recesses of the west wall, are two oil paintings by Nino Caravelli of Rome, representing the King and Queen of Italy. All this real monument of art, pure and classic, is the work of Giuseppe Sommaruga, architect, of Milan, who had also the task of organizing and directing all the principal decorations made in Italy.

UNITED COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS GIVE PARADE.

Mrs. Jane Taylor, whose son disappeared in 1893, Asks United Salesmen to Assist in Finding Him.

With a brass band from Cincinnati leading, the United Commercial Travelers marched in uniform and around the corridors of the inside inn yesterday, keeping step to the music as they sang the songs of the company. The parade was held on the grounds, but owing to the downpour of rain was planned to be abandoned. The suggestion was made to hold the parade on the grounds, but the suggestion was followed and the parade was held on the grounds.

Mrs. Jane Taylor of No. 577 O'Fallon street, whose son, George Albert, disappeared from St. Louis in 1893, is anxiously awaiting the return of her son. She has been told that he is in Chicago. A friend wrote her that her son had been very ill in Chicago.

Captain Conrad Recovered.

After more than a week of stiffness in the joints, with more or less scratches and abrasions of the skin, Captain C. H. Conrad, Adjutant of the Jefferson Guards, has resumed his duties. Captain Conrad was the central figure in a sensational runaway on the Pike nearly two weeks ago, when the horse he was riding was frightened at a passing automobile, both horse and rider going down together. The horse was badly cut about the face and his left knee received a severe wrench.
